17 November 2017, with an evening reception on 16 November
Mondrian London at Sea Containers, London, England

This law firm management conference will be an extremely innovative and forward-looking event. Its speakers and panellists will gather to explore the future for law firms, and will provide their thoughts and insights on how law firms will be very different in five or ten years from now. Speakers will include a range of acknowledged experts and law firm leaders and we are arranging for several vendors relevant to the 'law office of the future' to have their products and services actually demonstrated, either directly or through simulations using virtual reality.

Whether you are a law firm partner, business services professional or general counsel, this is a must-attend conference if you want to know all about the future of law firms and the legal world.

Topics include:

- Innovation in law firms: what is it, what is and isn't working? What are the newest technologies available to law firms? What can we expect to emerge in the next three-five years?
- Artificial intelligence: what is real and what is not? Will 'robots' eventually take over legal work completely? What do we need to build into our strategic thinking and what can we safely ignore?
- How will we use 'offices' and what is the future for office space design?
- A panel of general counsel concentrating on what innovations they want to see from law firms

Clients are from Mars, law firms are from Venus

Why the dynamics driving clients are leading them to insist on greater innovation, and how law firms can respond. Paul Lippe, who first became a Silicon Valley General Counsel in 1992, will explain the differing dynamics affecting clients, why Silicon Valley companies and GCs got there first and how law firms can build on their strengths to re-align with their clients.

Speaker

Paul Lippe Founder and CEO, Legal OnRamp, Lincoln, Massachusetts

0900 – 0915 Opening remarks

Stephen Denyer The Law Society of England and Wales, London; IBA SPPI Chair

Rolandas Valiunas Ellex Valiunas, Vilnius; Senior Vice Chair, IBA Law Firm Management Committee

0915 – 1015

What will clients expect of law firms in the future?

Law firms talk proudly about their achievements on the innovation front but what sort of innovation would clients like to see developed further? How do our clients want us to change and how do we ensure that our planning for the future fits what clients want of us in the future? Let's ask the clients.

The process of innovation

Conventional thinking on 'disruptive innovation' holds that when it happens, industry leaders are frequently doomed because they cannot evolve quickly enough to compete with emerging competitors. The session will explore how likely this trend is in the legal profession and what law firms need to do to sustain their competitiveness. The panellists, leaders in legal department and law firm innovation from different perspectives, will describe recent examples of successful innovation and provide a roadmap for firms to succeed in a world of accelerating innovation.

Speakers

Paul Lippe Founder and CEO, Legal OnRamp, Lincoln, Massachusetts
Robert Millard Cambridge Strategy Group, Cambridge; Co-Chair, IBA Law Firm Management Committee
Reena SenGupta RSG Consulting, London

1130 – 1300

The future of technology and how it will impact the law we advise upon and the practice of law

This session is divided into two panels that will look at two different sides of the technological 'coin'.

The first session will examine how lawyers are equipping themselves to advise on the law and regulations which apply to a variety of technological developments, from basic contractual issues in a blockchain concept to how a bitcoin is regulated. The panel will focus on how law firms should be ensuring that their lawyers know the law.

The second session will look at how technology is impacting the way in which law firms are practising law, i.e., how is technology helping (and challenging) the practice of law through technological tools such as Artificial Intelligence. This panel will also look at some of the ethical issues the use of such technology gives rise to.

Introduction

1400 – 1515 First breakout sessions: Matrix of the future part one

Breakout one

Artificial Intelligence

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is a term used to cover a multitude of products and processes. This session will examine the range of applications that are on offer, how law firms should go about deciding which to consider and, most importantly, how to adopt them and integrate them into a law firm's practice.

The session will start with five short TED Talks from people who have been developing AI products for law firms and how the different types of products can help law firms and clients. The panel will then seek to provide some practical guidance for law firms looking at AI products and have a broader debate as to how AI should be used by law firms.

Moderator

James Klotz Miller Thomson, Toronto; IBA Secretary-General

Breakout two

How blockchain can transform our profession

Many say that blockchain might bring a digital revolution that would be comparable only to the internet. While the Internet has not eliminated lawyers, it has profoundly changed the way we do our work. The same may happen with blockchain. Due to its decentralised and automated nature, blockchain creates opportunities to establish new, alternative models for the economy, societies and governments. Lawyers will need new skills in order to provide their assistance in the context of blockchain.

The following issues will be addressed during the session:

- Smart contracts – in the not so distant future, lawyers may find themselves drafting contracts and other documents in a way that resembles how developers code software. This will be possible thanks to smart contracts, one of the most interesting and promising applications of the blockchain technology.
- Blockchain as new jurisdiction – blockchain has no jurisdiction, therefore lawyers who want to be active in this area should be ready to abandon traditional paradigms related to jurisdiction, international law etc.
- Blockchain as a threat to the legal profession – blockchain applications remove the need to use trusted third parties. Some lawyers, such as notaries, may be eliminated from the market.
- Blockchain as an opportunity for the legal profession – blockchain creates opportunities to establish new tools enhancing trust among lawyers (eg, trusted exchange of information and documents, trusted registers of professional qualifications etc.)

Breakout three

The implications of Brexit for lawyers

This panel will look specifically at how lawyers are facing up to the challenges presented by Brexit. In addition to some general comments on regulation and the impact of Brexit on lawyers in the UK and the EU generally, a panel of general counsel from a variety of industries will discuss the ways in which it is affecting their companies and how lawyers have been called upon to help companies adapt to a wide variety of different types of impact. The session aims to start at the conceptual level and end up with deeper insights into how lawyers are responding to Brexit across the UK and EU economies.

1530 – 1645 Second breakout sessions: Matrix of the future part two

Breakout four

What is the 'shape' of the law firm of the future?

Given the increasing cost of real estate, how should law firms consider the layout of their offices? Law firms not only need to be cost efficient, with regard to a cost that is often (after salaries) the most significant cost a law firm has to bear, but equally importantly, how does the use of space tie into the way in which a law firm's relationship with its associates is changing through agile working and flexible working – are law firms ready for 'hot desking'? If you are considering a move or a refit of your offices, this session will provide invaluable and practical guidance as to how law firms across the world, large and small, are approaching what the shape of their law firm should be in the future, and in particular, how much real estate is required to provide the right environment for its lawyers at the right price.

Keynote speaker

Steve Martin Principal, Gensler, Washington DC

Moderator

Panellists

Paul Cronheim De Brauw Blackstone Westbroek, Amsterdam; Chair, IBA Law Firm Management Committee Strategy Working Group

Despina Katsikakis Transforming Workplace, London

Duncan Weston CMS, London

Vladislav Zabrodin Capital Legal Services International, Moscow

Breakout five

Are law firms delivering what associates want by way of a career and are associates delivering what law firms need?

The needs of 'millennials' in the workforce are now well understood and within the next few years the first 'Generation Zs' (aka centennials/ post-millennials, born from mid-1990's onwards) will start entering law firms. Thinking is moving from work-life balance, which everybody wants, to the work-life integration that technology offers in ways that were never possible before. This session will explore what the law firms at the cutting edge are doing to deliver the kinds of career that young practicing lawyers demand and to get the best performance from those lawyers.

Moderator

Julia Hayhoe Chief Strategy Officer, Baker McKenzie, London

Speakers

Mariano Batalla Batalla Salto Luna, San José; Website and Communications Officer, IBA Law Firm Management Committee

Mike Cullen Professor, Cass Business School, former Global Managing Partner, EY, London

Laura Devine Laura Devine Solicitors, London; Communications Officer, IBA Senior Lawyers' Committee

Breakout six

Marketing and BD in the digital age

Social media and other digital phenomena are radically transforming how lawyers interact with their clients, including in marketing/BD. This panel will explore emerging best practices in blogging, use of LinkedIn, Facebook and Twitter and social media generally to build your firm's brand, enhance client relationships and develop better business. The panel features guest speaker Kevin O'Keefe whose US company hosts over 1,000 lawyer blogs and who is a leading global authority on the use of social media for marketing legal services.

Moderator

Melissa Davis MD Communications, London; Chair, Law Firm Management Committee Business Development and Marketing Working Group, IBA Law Firm Management Committee

Speakers

Holly Gavaghan Business Development Director, Keating Chambers, London

Kevin O'Keefe CEO and Founder, LexBlog, Seattle

Gerard McDermott QC Outer Temple Chambers, London

Jörg Menzer Noerr, Bucharest; Co-Chair, IBA Regional Fora Coordination Committee

Mandy Reynolds Head of Marketing, Stephens Scown, Exeter

1645 – 1715

Final joint session

Bill Gates once said, 'We always overestimate the change that will occur in the next two years and underestimate the change that will occur in the next ten.' Taking that into account, at a stretch, how might the practice of law be different in 2027, to what is the case today? We ask four speakers to give their views and also comment on the day's proceedings.

Moderator

Rolandas Valiunas Ellex Valiunas, Vilnius; Senior Vice Chair, IBA Law Firm Management Committee

Unauthorised Accommodation Agents

It has been brought to our attention that there are multiple companies contacting past attendees, claiming to represent the IBA, offering 'assistance' with registration and hotel bookings.

They are operating by cold-calling and spamming companies whose names have appeared on previous List of Participants, Programmes and Sponsorship recognition. The only Accommodation Agent the IBA works with is JLC ICS. JLC ICS do not contact delegates on behalf of the IBA without delegates making initial contact. Please ignore any communication that does not come directly from the IBA or JLC ICS.
